

ROOSEVELT STANDS PAT IN ECONOMIC ADVISORS' TURN OF PRESIDENT'S INFLECTION MOVE

Sharp Criticism Heard From "Sound Money" Groups and Defenders of the Administration

Washington, Nov. 23.—Psychological details failed to develop indications of a change today in the administration's monetary policy as Henry Morgenthau, Jr., new acting secretary of the treasury, prepared to talk over latest developments with President Roosevelt.

Paying little outward heed to the vehement controversy over monetary policy, the administration proceeded with its gold program today, holding the domestic price of the metal at the same level as yesterday.

The quotation was $32.75 per ounce. Meanwhile the world price was $32.80 at the opening London auction quotation of $32.80 to the pound. The dollar later improved, carrying the London gold quotation down to $32.80.

Morgenthau leaves tonight for Warm Springs, Georgia, to keep an engagement tomorrow with the President. The gold-buying plan will be discussed thoroughly.

Mr. Morgenthau's official had forecast whether the decision at Warm Springs would be a complete administration silence or a counter-offensive to meet that set off by Dr. O. M. W. Sprague's resignation and criticism of the policy as being "unrestrained inflation."

Some consideration was given to President Roosevelt's speech in which he talked of fighting the "powerful," the "monstrous," and the "obstacle" for the things which we believe to be right. There were intimations at Warm Springs that steps would be taken soon to aid silver.

Mr. Morgenthau's criticism of the monetary policy continued to develop from various points.

In Philadelphia, James M. Warburg, New York banker, and financial advisor to the American delegation at the London Economic Conference and participant in many economic discussions with the President, said he must express "substantial" opposition to "some of the methods by which he (the President) seeks to attain his goal, some of the misconceptions, that seem to bedevil his purpose."

At the same meeting of the American Academy of Political Science, Professor Irving Fisher of Yale, said the President's monetary policy "substantially right. The objectives, he continued, is "stabilization not in terms of foreign exchange."

Senator Thomas (D., Okla.), director of inflation legislation, remarked at that meeting, too, that he was "so much opposed" to "improper" inflation "as any money change in Wall Street."

Sprague's Resignation

By Julius G. Berens
Financial Editor, New York American

That step was taken FOR THE GOOD OF ENGLAND.

This was September, 1931. Professor Sprague didn't then desert the Bank of England because of the gold abandonment. He stayed on his job all through 1932.

HE OBSERVED THAT THE BANK OF ENGLAND PROCEEDED WITH A GOLD MANIPULATION WHICH IS DUPLICATED IN THE POLICY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT NOW IS CONDUCTING FOR THE UNITED STATES.

The Bank of England manipulated the price of gold so that the pound, the money of England, was forced down to a substantial discount from gold. This was DELIBERATE POLICY on the part of the Bank of England.

Professor Sprague issued near a squeak of protest against the Bank of England program to lift the price of gold.

THE British SUCCEEDED in stemming the downward swing of THEIR prices. Their commodity prices stopped dropping as soon as England abandoned gold—or, rather, as soon as England manipulated the price of gold upward, as soon as the pound's gold value began to shrink.

Meanwhile, American prices continued their slump.

IT WAS NOT UNTIL WE ABANDONED THE FIXED GOLD STANDARD AFTER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ELECTION THAT OUR PRICES STARTED TO RISE.

But is Professor Sprague satisfied with the American program?

He would have put a HALT to the whole procedure in the early summer during the international economic conference at London.

He would have stabilized the dollar to the English pound in a ratio then prevailing, about 3 1/2 to 1. This was a distinctly pro-English act by an American who had been appointed special economic advisor to the AMERICAN treasury.

President Roosevelt wisely escaped the noose which would have tightened around the United States if he had accepted the recommendations of the professor who had been impregnated with ENGLAND'S NEEDS.

From that time on President Roosevelt ignored Professor Sprague.

Now the professor is peeved, insulted, disappointed, etc., over our program which, in his vision, means ruin, destruction, oblivion for the American economy.

Yet we are doing only what England, France, Italy, Australia, Japan, Sweden and a long list of other countries have done, or are all doing, for the same purpose; first stemming the decline in commodity prices, then advancing them according to the needs of their specific peoples.

PROFESSOR SPRAGUE, trained in the excessively orthodox school of banking, molded by his contacts with the type of international bankers represented by the British fiscal agents in the United States, hired frequently by them to make surveys, is unalterably opposed to the President's policy.

In his bitterly denunciatory letter of resignation, Professor Sprague is giving vent to the thoughts and hopes of that element of the banking fraternity which has fought every progressive step of the President.

He is the spearhead at the moment of the whole drive of the banking community to destroy the President's program.

The real driving forces of this attack dare not show themselves. They have been hopelessly discredited by events over the past few years and by the thorough dishonesty of their methods as exposed by the Senate.

Still they persist in claiming intelligence sufficient to bring us out of the depression.

THEY would have us rely on the same old methods that brought the nation into the economic calamity.

This will not do—and President Roosevelt seems well aware of it.

The President has wisely determined to follow out his own monetary program, that of manipulating the price of gold until commodity prices are in agreement with the vast burden of debt and the employment requirements of the country.

The Hearst papers are in thorough accord with this policy.

But they urge the President to rush his program so that the business community may know as soon as possible how far the dollar devaluation will go.

The Hearst papers reiterate their belief that a 50 per cent devaluation will bring the desired results.

RUSSIA AGREES TO SETTLE DEBT CLAIMS

Final Settlement in Dollars to Be Left to Congress

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Soviet Russia has tentatively agreed to make a cash payment to the United States in connection with both the American debt and damage claims.

This was learned today by Max Litvinoff, the Soviet's foreign commissar, prepared to depart for Moscow.

UP TO CONGRESS
The amount of money which the Soviets have agreed to pay and the method in which it will be paid was withheld pending a final understanding through diplomatic channels.

The payment probably will be made in dollars and American quarters felt it will be satisfactory to this government.

The amount which will be offered in connection with the $187,000,000 claim will be submitted to Congress for its approval. The remainder will be an understanding between President Roosevelt and the Soviet government.

Litvinoff remained over nearly a week in Washington. His settlement could be reached before his departure. Both sides had hoped the final understanding on debts could be made the climax to the treaty.

NEGOTIATIONS TO GO ON
It was found impossible to reach a final settlement on both debts and damage claims in such a short time, because of the complicated nature of the details and the ability of American Government officials, especially Acting Secretary of the Treasury, Morgenthau, to devote sufficient time to the matter.

In announcing that it had been found impossible to reach conclusions before Litvinoff's departure, the State Department said the discussions would be actively continued by officials of both governments.

The conversations which have taken place have shown a desire on the part of both governments to reach a speedy solution of the claims.

FIRST LADY IS TARGET FOR PAY DARTS

Washington, Nov. 23.—The wives of the President, vice-president and speaker of the House may be named in Congress at the January session in an attack on an economy act section requiring departments to dismiss women when husbands are also employed by the government.

Some members opposed to nepotism say they will claim that the economy act discriminates against small wage earners in the government.

They say they plan to cite the Mrs. Roosevelt is engaged in various enterprises while her husband is drawing the largest government salary. In addition, they expect to remind that Mrs. John N. Garner of the Vice-President and speaker respectively, are on the federal payroll as secretaries to their husbands.

Talk about such a campaign was stimulated on Capitol Hill today by a statement by the Veterans Bureau, and other government agencies, of a questionnaire to workers as to whether they prefer to remain on the federal payroll over their wives or husbands.

KIDNAP MOTHER'S OF THE CHILDREN CRY FOR THEIR SISTERS

MRS. PATRONE PLANS FIGHT FOR BABY

Adopted Daughter Is Taken on Auto Ride by Nickersons

By RUTH MUGGERIDGE
"She's my baby and I want her," I'm kept saying, "until I get her... she's mine..."
Released yesterday from the jail as the "kidnap mother," Mrs. Patricia Patrone of the South End today resumed her plaint and persisted in her fight for the return of her daughter, Jean Marie, four years old, who was taken from her home by her father, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nickerson of East Boston. The child was snatched up in Suffolk court by her mother and rushed to a secret hiding place, concealed there until yesterday when the minister of Mrs. Patrone's church persuaded her to the court. In today the innocent pawn of litigation that gives promise of reaching the Supreme court.

PLANS LONG FIGHT

Mrs. Patrone was at home in her Washington at last today after almost two weeks of jail confinement, still vowing she would devote the rest of her life to an effort to regain her child.
Mrs. Patrone did not break down and say in the familiar hysterical women. This battle for custody of her own daughter is being planned tonight and the South End court will offer legal points to substantiate her claim.
As she talked in her flat today, distraught with her eyes and in the dominance of her face.

TEARS OF SUFFERING

"When a mother wants a child, she doesn't give up," Mrs. Patrone began. "She is my baby, I suffered for her, I am her mother. She belongs to me, she can't be taken away from me. I want her. And I'm keeping trying until the courts are my point of view."
"I came home last night after I was released from jail, and my other two daughters."

Death Clues Point to Kin

WHO DRUGGED THEN KILLED HER? Mrs. Rheta Wynekoop, beautiful young wife of Karl Wynekoop, whose body was found on the operating table in her mother-in-law's clinic in her Chicago home. There was a bullet in her back and she first had been given an anesthetic.

TABLE WHERE GIRL'S BODY LAY Scene in the operating room of the Wynekoop 16-room mansion. The body lay there. Dozens of clues—almost too many, police say—have been found, including the death gun, blood-stained blankets, a chloroform mask, insurance policy and other items.

2 HELD IN GIRL WOMAN CAUGHT AS FORGER

Worcester, Nov. 23.—Arrested in connection with alleged illegal surgery on a 20-year-old girl, Josephine Bellard, 38, of Orange st., and Joseph Gugliemini, 28, of Shrewsbury st., were held under $1000 bond each today in District court on the afternoon of the girl's condition.
The state ward is now in Worcester City Hospital in a critical condition and physicians fear she may die.
Miss Bellard is charged with performing the surgery and Gugliemini with being an accessory before the fact. Their case was continued to Dec. 15.

Mrs. Wynekoop Talked 'Strange Interlude' as Girl Died

Chicago, Nov. 23.—(INS)—While pretty Rheta G. Wynekoop's murdered body lay undiscovered on an operating table below, the two living occupants of the darkened 16-room Wynekoop mansion were discussing Eugene O'Neill's moody drama, "Strange Interlude."
This was elicited from Dr. Alice Wynekoop, prominent woman physician, as police questioned her, as she sat in her companion, Miss Edith Henderson.
Dr. Wynekoop told Police Capt. Rhea that she had sent her daughter-in-law in a neighborhood drug shop on the afternoon of the girl's mysterious murder.
While Rheta was away a left on a shopping trip herself, returning about 8 p. m.
The young wife was missing when Dr. Wynekoop returned and she searched the house but did not then enter her office where the body was later discovered, strangled in its clothes and swathed in a blanket.
Dr. Wynekoop then prepared dinner for herself and Miss Henderson, a roomer. Rheta's absence caused her to worry, she said, because the girl was wont to stay home.
Dinner completed, the two women went in the library and talked. Dr. Wynekoop said she had read O'Neill drama of conflicting emotions of two personalities, the physician said.

Legislator Raps Means Group in House Debate on Rum Bill

State troopers guarded the House of Representatives this afternoon as debate on the hard liquor control bill waged on the floor before a throng which jammed the galleries of the chamber and overflowed into the corridors.
The police guard was heavily stationed as the crowd threatened to become unmanageable in attempts to gain entrance.
Mildly enough in view of the bitter wrangling expected to develop, Rep. Albert Bigelow, chairman of the House Ways and Means committee, read the bill as reported by his committee with the favor provisions thrown out.
Interpretation of the bill was of a minor nature, the legislators and the listeners apparently contenting themselves with waiting until several firing on the tax-revision provisions and its rejection had begun.

OUTLAYS TALKS

When Bigelow had completed his remarks, Rep. Albert Bigelow, of New York, introduced a bill which would require all druggists applying for package licenses to pay a fee of $100, to be held in business at least two years before the date of application.
Rep. John Dehman, of Michigan, introduced a bill which would generally reported on hard liquor legislation and of legal affairs committee which re-drafted the bill.

ROTATION ASKED

A recommendation will be made that the lower court system and the probation system that are now administered by a group of municipal courts in Boston be rotated to a central municipal court.
The bill would keep the judges' rotation on no judge will act as a permanent judge, get to know lawyers intimately, face the same offenders time after time.
Probation officers and clerks, too, would be rotated under the plan.

ROTATION ASKED

While rotation of judges has been discussed in the House of Representatives, this will be the first time the placing of probation officers and other court officials under the same rotation will be recommended.
In other matters than Suffolk, a county circuit system also will be recommended.

ROTATION ASKED

With a number of amendments in mind, the House adjourned its morning session.
The Senate's public safety committee announced its determination to pursue the principles of prohibition, regardless of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.
The committee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, announced that it would introduce a bill to amend the act to enforce prohibition, to require package stores to sell a gift of liquor, known in the old days as "pots."

ROTATION ASKED

Another amendment offered by Rep. Lewis R. Sullivan of Boston would restrict a provision requiring the introduction of his amendment to require package stores to sell a gift of liquor, known in the old days as "pots."

ROTATION ASKED

Appointment of inspectors was deemed necessary by Rep. Terence J. Lomax of Fall River. The proposed enforcement of local police amendments.

Radical Changes to Be Recommended: Probation System Involved

Copyright, 1933, for the Boston Evening American
The Massachusetts Crime Commission, headed by Prof. Frank E. Simpson of Boston University Law School, will recommend radical changes in the present lower court and probation systems, because of alarming conditions discovered, the Boston Evening American learned today.
The commission will report to the legislature that the manner in which frequent offenders escape conviction is startling and indicates a corrupting general picture of the existing system.

ROTATION ASKED

The commission will make a careful study of the records of almost a hundred "public enemies," and involving nearly a thousand arrests in the last two years.

Beautiful, But No Redskin

"Timmy," up on the "Hurricane Deck" of the Floating Hospital wants his Indians live and with feathers. One with a tomahawk will be appreciated. Miss Dolly Hiney of Brush Hill, Milford, Junior League, is doing the best she can to cheer "Timmy" with pictures and stories of Indians taking part in Pilgrimage at just about this season years ago, but still he wants a real Indian—and today the Boston Evening American joined hospital authorities in the quest for an Indian, preferably one who looks as if he were on the warpath—but who isn't! (Boston American photo.)

WANT'S QUINCY RELIEF REAL INDIAN WOOD STOLEN

Even Indians are scarce these days, officials of the Boston Floating Hospital, who have been seeking a real Indian to replace the "Timmy" who was stolen from the Floating Hospital, are now seeking a real Indian to replace the "Timmy" who was stolen from the Floating Hospital.

HUGE ORDERSTO 3 MILLS IN LAWRENCE

Arlington Gets One Contract Over a Half-Million

Lawrence, Nov. 23.—Trade workers of Greater Lawrence received good news today in the announcement that three mills have been awarded contracts by the government for large amounts of war-related goods.
The awards came as a result of successful bidding by the Arlington Mill of Lawrence, the Stevens Mill of North Andover and the Selden Mill in Methuen.
It is understood that the contracts amount could not be less than $500,000. The other contracts are for the purchase of war-related goods and are of substantial value and sufficient to keep the mills in the black for the year.

HOT STRIKERS COAST PAY

Workers of the Winslow Brothers & Smith tannery, Norwood, who have been out on strike since Thursday, today filed into the plant in groups of 25 to collect the three days' pay due them at the time they walked out.
The workers' groups were accompanied by police guards, while the firm had a number of New York guards on hand to protect paymasters from any possible violence.
Meanwhile three women, Stella Sampson, 35, of Concord st., and Grace, 42, of Polin ave., and Thelma Rodman, 32, of Austin st., all of Norwood, were arrested in District court.
The entered pleas of not guilty to charges of attacking Freda Vail, 25, who she attacked while they were in the tannery. Their cases were continued until Monday, and they were held in $500 each.
Four men, charged with conspiracy to burn the tannery, of Lewis E. Fife, were also arrested and pleaded not guilty. They are John Kallender of Saunders rd., Volio Lasko of Chapel st., Harry La Blina of Munroe st. and Francis Lynch of Monroe st., all of Norwood. They were held in $500 each.
Pickets were on duty at the plant, but there was no disturbance today.

43 RESCUED ON BOSTON SHIP

The crew of 43 of the big Boston freighter, Ohlsen, were rescued by the coast guard at New York today after a collision of the Ohlsen and the liner Liberia in Ambrose channel.
Although first radio reports said the Ohlsen was sinking, she was not grounded in a mud flat and no life inspection indicated any probability that she could be floated after her capsizing.
Her captain and radio operator remained on board until the ship was hoisted by a crane and later in the week was due at Commonwealth Pier.
The Ohlsen is an American-built ship, built in Boston. She was inbound from Brooklyn from Seattle and later in the week was due at Commonwealth Pier.
The Liberia, owned by the Commonwealth Line, evidently was not seriously damaged in the crash. She was outbound from Hoboken, N. J., for Atlantic coast ports.
The Ohlsen was the ship flying the U. S. flag. The Commonwealth line dockmen's strike in 1929.

JURY IS TO QUIZ 40 IN FEDERAL BANK PROBE

Forty witnesses were summoned to appear today before the Federal grand jury which met in special session to consider further evidence in the probe of the Federal National Bank and two affiliates, the State National Bank, of Lynn, and the Inman Trust Co., of Cambridge. Alleged irregularities taken up today totaled $300,000, making an aggregate of $2,000,000 in questionable transactions investigated to date.

This is the fourth special grand jury session called in connection with the $300,000,000 collapse of the Federal National chain.

Simultaneously came announcement from Washington that $2,500,000, representing the third 10 per cent dividend, would be paid to 25,000 depositors 10 days before Christmas. Congressman John W. McCormack's office reported that advice of the comptroller-general had informed the Massachusetts congressman that the Reconstruction Finance Corp. approved the application of Receiver Herbert Pearson for a loan to pay the third dividend.

Among the witnesses subpoenaed today are James H. Brennan, former member of the Governor's Council, who is receiver of the State National Bank of Lynn, and the Boston-Continental National Bank. A separate probe of the latter bank by U. S. District Judge Francis J. W. Ford and agents of the Department of Justice is under way.

Directors of the Inman Trust and State National Bank also were summoned today with books and records of the parent bank and the two affiliates. It was reported that a real estate deal in which a bank clerk is alleged to have received a $3000 bonus was one of the items considered.

Thirteen indictments already have been returned against nine bank officials. Daniel C. Mullooney, president of the Federal National, is named in 11 indictments. It was reported today that at least six more indictments are expected, but that no new defendants are likely to be involved.

COAKLEY GOADES TO FAILURE TO DEFEND SELF 1911

Angrily Shouts He Pleaded With Pelletier for Hours so That He Could

Daniel H. Coakley faced a relentless fire of questions by President Robert G. Dodge of the Boston Bar Association in the Supreme Court today and at times was galled into shouting his answers angrily as he fought the last stage of his battle for reinstatement to the bar.

Another feature of today's session was reading by Coakley of a letter endorsing his fight for reinstatement, written by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

Dodge put Coakley on the spot for his failure to defend himself in the Supreme Court 11 years ago after he had been accused during the trial that caused Joseph C. Pelletier's removal as district attorney.

The dynamic member of the governor's council flung back his reasons, without hesitation and in great detail.

TRIED TO DEFEND SELF. But his voice, at first soft and low, rose to a shout after Pelletier tried to make him admit that Pelletier rated his case without a defense because William J. Corcoran, accused and later imprisoned district attorney of Middlesex County, had confessed.

Coakley asserted he tried for hours to get Pelletier to put in defense, in which he himself would have had a chance to explain away the charges of conspiracy between him and Pelletier.

He said he brought Judge Coakley of the New York Supreme Court to Boston to argue in association with U. S. Senator James Reed of Missouri, who was Pelletier's attorney, but it was of no avail.

RESTRICTED BY COURT. Coakley also declared he did not stand up in the Supreme Court at that time and make an independent statement in defense of himself because another lawyer had done so and had been retained by the court, and the statement was not viewed as evidence.

"You know you were mentioned in the charges against Pelletier?" asked Dodge.

"In some of them," replied Coakley.

Q.—You conferred with Pelletier during his trial, followed his progress? A.—I did.

Q.—There was a conference every evening? A.—Not every one, but on a great many evenings.

Q.—And on Thursday, Jan. 19, a decision was reached not to put in evidence because you learned that day that William J. Corcoran had been fixed?

Coakley shouted back a long answer.

"That is positively not the way," he said. "That was a statement that was started at that time. There was not the slightest connection between Pelletier and anything in Corcoran's alleged confession."

Q.—What's the reason for not putting in a defense in the Pelletier case that you realized the attorney general had put in damning evidence? A.—That was not the reason.

"I had no fear. I know that the full court would never find against Pelletier if the witnesses available to go on the stand had been called."

"If defense testimony had been put in the Pelletier case, I had no fear of the outcome."

BANK DEPOSITS NAMED. Dodge—Coming back to the testimony was offered, you know there was testimony having some significance regarding deposits by Pelletier. In the case of Buckley, there was $250 withdrawn by you one day, and $250 paid to Goulding, leaving $250, and Pelletier deposited $250 to his account on the next day. In the Emerson Motor Case, involving $500, there was a similar close relationship of date, and you say you have explanations of those transactions. Is that right?

Coakley—I had them but some of the men are now dead.

Dodge tried to bring out that at Coakley's criminal trial in Middlesex County, where he was found not guilty, the government did not produce as many witnesses as were produced when the same names were dealt with in the Supreme Court hearing in the removal case against Dist. Atty. Coakley.

Coakley insisted all the important witnesses were there and he had had his strategy. These included the Stearns and Mishawum Manor cases.

PRESIDENT IS 'WONDER MAN' TO CHILD

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 23 (AP)—Just a glance of President Roosevelt a year ago bore fruit here today in the arrival of the young girl at the infantile paralysis sanatorium.

In October a year ago, Mr. Roosevelt was in Worcester, Mass. As his car drove through the streets, he noticed that a little girl who watched him—she if a year then—had been on her legs.

The little girl was Kathryn Murphy of Worcester. At the time the President stopped his car and expressed the wish that the young star could come to Warm Springs. But there was no money for the trip in the Murphy family.

Soon after this the mayor of Worcester, John Mahoney, heard about the case.

Little Kathryn arrived last night at 7:30 p. m. and appeared thrilled to death to discover that Mr. Roosevelt was here.

"I think the President is a wonderful man," she said. "I hope to see him while I am here."

The child's mother, Mrs. Frederick Murphy, who accompanied Kathryn, will be here for a few days. After that, the girl will be taken to receive treatments here. She is expected to be completely cured.

Her case is rather unusual. Three years ago, yesterday, she was stricken with the paralysis. Since then she has improved tremendously, by until now only her legs remain afflicted.

Court Jails 'Meanest Thief'

Within five minutes after a jury had convicted him in superior court, Loreto Tessinelli of East Boston was on his way to Deer Island today to serve a two-year sentence, and with the characteristic "meanest thief" pinned on him by Judge Donnelly.

Tessinelli, according to testimony, with his brother Robert, still a fugitive, advertised for milk wagon drivers and when applicants applied at offices in Merchants Row, the brothers forced them to file cash bonds of $100 to $150 in anticipation of work.

The job never was forthcoming, however, and there were 23 applicants in the office when Bert, Patrick Flannery arrived and arrested Loreto. Two stenographers lost a business speed to the premises, according to police.

"A man of his type, who advertises for married men for the purpose of fleecing them," said Judge Donnelly, "is the lowest, meanest type of thief I have ever had before me."

Police Seek Suicide in Muddy River Bed

Police at the Back Bay station are dragging the waters of Muddy River near the bridge at Boylston st. and the Fenway for the body of a man, reported to have jumped from the structure late Tuesday night. A woman reported to police that she saw the man leap from the bridge.

MELLEY FILES NAZIS PLAN BIG FORMAL PLEA

Rep. William M. Melley of Chelsea, who won the right at a court hearing Tuesday to file a petition asking to have the recent majority decision annulled, filed his formal charges today in superior court, reiterating his allegations that Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley bought votes and otherwise broke the election laws.

Quigley beat Melley by 626 votes, but if three superior court judges, who will hear the petition, rule in Melley's favor, the office of mayor will be declared vacant and a new election will have to be held.

Petitioners with Melley are Louis Griffin, Dominick DeLara, Frances W. Toltz, Ella Toltz, Mark K. Melley, Edward Melchior, William J. Farrell, Lawrence V. Erickson, and Leo DeLo.

Several of these petitioners testified at the preliminary hearing that they were beaten up or threatened with guns on election day, when, according to Melley, cars containing his workers were forced to flee from the city.

In the formal petition, Mayor Quigley is accused of making gifts or rewards to influence voters, and directly or indirectly obstructing voters, preventing election officers from performing their duties, impeding with a ballot box, aiding persons to vote under other names than their own and aiding persons to cast more than one ballot.

NAZIS PLAN BIG UNITY SERVICE

Boston, Nov. 23 (AP)—More complete registration of German Protestants was foreseen today in an order that a unity service be held the first Sunday of each month at which the same sermons will be preached and the same songs sung throughout the States.

Bishop Ludwig Mueller decreed December 3—the date of his consecration as the leader of German Protestants—as the day of the first general service.

Originating in Nazi Christian church sections, it was considered likely the new order from Bishop Mueller might fuel to the smoldering fire of religious dissension, since non-Nazi Protestants and Catholics both have taken stands against plans likely to be followed by members of the Germanic cult movement.

Observers regarded the edict as another opening for 3000 ministers who consistently have defied other orders emanating from Nazi Christian circles.

20 Quizzed Again in Rockport Death

Rockport, Nov. 23—Four state detectives were engaged in questioning some 20 residents of this town in connection with the torching of Mrs. Augusta Johnson, wealthy Pigeon Cove widow, at authorities admitted today they are still apparently against a black trail in their hunt for the murderer.

Blinker Light Fails Even Hultman

Police Commr. Hultman was maintaining a hush and dignified silence today at the body blow which was suffered by his pet police blinker system.

The commissioner went personally last night to the police alarm box at Huntington and Massachusetts' sves. Back Bay, which it was complained, failed to function when an attempt was made in summer police with it after the Old France robbery Monday night.

Commr. Hultman stopped to the box, pulled the hook and stood waiting for police to appear. They didn't. A cable was defective.

Jordan's Host to Author

Hervy Allen, the man who wrote a novel more than a thousand pages long that became a best seller, visited Boston today to be present at a reception for him in the Ritz-Carlton and later to autograph copies of his "Anthony Adverse" in the book department of the Jordan-March Co.

He points to the thousands of his books that have been sold as far as proof that the American reading public is turning to longer novels. He cites O'Leary and Priestley's books, too, but he does not suggest the cause for this. Maybe it's all this NRA leisure.

BONES FOUND IN FIRE RUINS

West Cumberland, Me., Nov. 23 (AP)—Authorities today expressed belief that Mrs. Lillian Anderson, 32, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Anderson home early today.

Bones found in the ruins were to be analyzed in an effort to determine whether they were those of a human.

Neighbors, notified by a motorist of the fire, sought to enter the burning home but were unable. Investigating officers said the woman's husband was on board a ship en route from Virginia and expected to arrive today. Mrs. Anderson's brother, who lived at the house, was on a hunting trip.

Neighbors said Mrs. Anderson returned home about midnight after a visit to a neighbor's house.

The fire was believed caused by a defective chimney.

$1,520,000 FEE
PAID IN FOX FILM DEAL

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—Evidence of the payment of $1,520,000 to Samuel Untermyer and $200,000 to the law firm of Charles Evans Hughes for legal services in the fight by William Fox to save his theater properties was held today by Senate investigators.

The fees were paid by General Theaters Equipment, Inc., the evidence disclosed, under an agreement with Fox when that holding company bought control of six theater companies for $18,000,000 plus other considerations.

Fox employed Hughes and Untermyer to help him save his vast theater holdings after he had been caught in the market crash of 1929 and was threatened with receivership.
Untermyer advised him on the contract by which he finally got the $15,000,000 plus, despite the financial predicament of his corporation. Hughes' services were rendered before he became chief justice of the United States.

The former theater magnate was called before the committee today to tell his side of the story. Senators expected him to charge he was forced out of the theater business by a conspiracy of bankers.

Fox was asked primarily about a $2,700,000 payment Harley J. Clark, former president of General Theaters, had testified he made to the theater man in connection with certain moving picture patents.

400 LEADERS TO BOOST NRA

Nearly 400 business, civic, traditional and church leaders will attend an NRA rally tomorrow night at the Chamber of Commerce Building, under the auspices of the Boston Recovery Committee.

Among those expected to attend
are Cardinal O'Connor, Mayor
Curley, Gov. Ely, Mayor-elect Hastings, Bishop Hendricken, Sherrill, Edward A. Fline, chairman of the Massachusetts State Recovery Board, Elliot Wadsworth, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Rabbi Harry Levy.

The State Recovery Board has received word that Massachusetts public works projects, amounting to $11,125,000, have been approved at Washington, and other projects, to cost nearly $7,000,000, are awaiting approval.

TODAY

Arizona, possesses good health and considerable will power.
It is safe to predict that after he takes office on Jan. 1 New York will know that something happened in the recent election.

The most dramatic death,
self-inflicted, in history, is said to be that of an ancient Egyptian pharaoh who jumped into the mouth of a volcano when life became tireless. He wanted his death to be mysteriously impressive.

A young widow of Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. Louise T. Stanton, only 30 years old, and a Junior League leader, the reporters tell you, selected a road to death even more dramatic.

This young woman borrowed an airplane, took four hours' supply of fuel, and flew out over the Atlantic, leaving a note saying, that she would "head that come down when the gas gave out, and let that be the end." She did not want the word "suicide" used, she just wanted "to go out into space and find out what it is all about. And if there isn't anything—that's O. K. too."

After she had been gone two hours the airport authorities found her note, and started to hunt for her, uselessly. She wrote to the airport manager that she had taken enough gas to get out of reach of searching parties. "There is not a plane on the field that can reach me and return. I will be at sea, that's all, and you can count on me that the job will be thorough.
I don't want any wreckage found."

A young woman with that inquiring mind and flying ability should have remained alive, to do useful work.

The government has ordered 104 powerful anti-aircraft searchlights, expected to send their sweeping beams 100 miles in every direction. These searchlights, costing more than two million dollars, producing 800, 000,000 candle power, will be useful in locating enemy planes flying over.

But you cannot destroy a plane with light beams. The country also needs fast pursuit planes to send after enemy planes, and plenty of them. We are behind other great nations now in the air, and if we wait until somebody from Asia or Europe actually sends planes against us, it will be too late.

We don't do things very well, in a hurry, as witness our hundreds of ships that never went to sea, and hundreds of millions' worth of modern military machines that could not fly.

NEW DRESS FOR PATRONE CHILD

broke down and cried when they saw me without Jean Marie. I rocked the little one, Ellen, to quiet her and she fell asleep crying.

"Momma, why don't they give us back Jean Marie?" they asked me. What could I say? Nothing. I had to say that the courts decided her to the Nickersons, law which they don't understand.

MOTHER LOVE SPEAKS

"I am not revengeful against the Nickersons. I am not pursuing my action to the highest court in the land out of spite. Mother love is speaking and in this case mother love must be heard."

"Oh, I had plenty of time to think things out while I was in jail. There were many times when I could have easily broken down. But I knew I must pull myself together, hold myself firm for the future course of action."

Thus the battle will continue to rage over Jean Marie's custody while the tiny center of the controversy remains blindly unaware of the storm which has created it.

Together with Mrs. A. Pironne, members of the Union Congregational Church at Columbia ave., where she attended, were planning ways in which they could be of assistance in the mother's fight.

BABY GOES FOR RIDE

Meanwhile, little Jean Marie was preparing to go for a drive with Mrs. Nickerson. That was the first thing she asked for yesterday, but then there was only time for a toothbrush.

Except for a shopping tour this morning, the little girl and her foster-mother have been in seclusion in the home of friends in an attempt to avoid the press of editors and telephone calls at the Nickerson home following the return of the child.

Mrs. Nickerson bought two dresses, some pajamas, stockings, hair ribbons and other things for Jean Marie today.

She said the child needed a good rest and would be kept at home until January. Then she will be sent to a kindergarten.

JEAN MARIE

MRS. NICKERSON

MRS. PATRONE

Baby Jean Marie prattled in gleeful abandon today at her first breakfast with foster mother, Mrs. Thomas Nickerson, of East Boston, since she was kidnapped by her real mother, Mrs. Eunice Patrone, Jean, however, cried for Mrs. Patrone when they were separated yesterday. (Boston American photo.)

Truce Voted in Farm Strike

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 23 (INS)—Farm holiday association leaders, gathered here for the National Farmers' Union convention, today announced that a truce has been voted in the farm strike. Picketing activities will be suspended. Governors of the Middle Western states will present their situation to Congress.

BRIDE IS SLAIN, ALFRED S. CLARK MATE VANISHES

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 23 (INS)—Mrs. William Wilkinson, 37-year-old English-born bride of a Canadian captain, was mysteriously slain at Glace Bay, N. S., today. She was shot through the head with a bullet from a hunting rifle.

At 6 a. m. Mrs. Wilkinson, barefooted and clad only in her night clothing, fled to the home of a neighbor.

The blinds were drawn but as she passed a lighted window a bullet crashed through the glass. It struck her below the eye, went through her head, killing her instantly.

Police could find no trace of her husband.

The victim's brothers-in-law, Walter and Harry Wilkinson—who were in the house at the time were held by the police for questioning. Both men had been drinking, according to the police.

U. S. to Sell 24,000 Cases of Liquor

New York, Nov. 23 (INS)—The federal government today prepared to take a little flax in the liquor business—in a strictly legal manner, of course.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. David V. Cahill announced that bids would be opened for sale of 24,000 cases of spirits seized by coast guards from rum running ships captured in the New York area. The liquor, Cahill carefully pointed out, will be disposed of for medicinal purposes only.

The contraband, stored at the Brooklyn army base, included fine Scotch whiskey, some old gin, champagne and assorted liquors.

ALFRED S. CLARK, WRITER, DIES

Alfred Sinclair Clark, editorial and feature writer on the Boston Post for the last 23 years, is dead at his home in Fairhope rd., Needham Heights, as a result of a heart attack.

He was 54 years of age, son of the late former Sen. William A. Clark of Lynn and Mrs. Clark, the latter surviving him. Graduating from Harvard in 1900 he traveled extensively, joining the staff of the Post in 1906, to remain a short time and then go West. He returned in 1907 and was successively newsman, night city editor, editorial and special feature writer. Clark was writing a book on "The Pursuit of Happiness" at the time of his death.

His widow, the former Miss Susan Arnold of New York City, survives him, together with four children, Alan, Joy, Margot and Jean. He also left a brother and two sisters. The funeral will be private.

Dolly Gann Follows 'First Lady' in Air

New York, Nov. 23—Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of former Vice-President Curtis, flew from Washington to New York, because, she said, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt "has made us all air minded."

It was her first flight, she added, and stated it so well that she will return to Washington the same way.

She was accompanied by her son, Mr. Gann, said, in to meet Alfred E. Smith.

Nature School Plan Ready In Newton

Work on the "back to nature schoolhouse," for which a loan and grant of $248,000 was approved at Washington yesterday, will be started in Newton as soon as the weather permits, it was announced today.

The building of 16 rooms, will contain several novel departures from the ordinary type of schoolhouse. Several rooms will contain floors of earth instead of hardwood. A playground with a maximum of sunlight from the sides and top is to be another feature.

Ernst Hermann, superintendent of playgrounds, said his studies had convinced him hard floors and pavements were spoiling human feet, particularly in the formative age. For this reason dirt floors will be used in several rooms.

BEARSE SLAYER ARREST LOOMS

Hyannis, Nov. 23—Arrest of one of the slayers of Franklin Beare, Osterville hijacker, which has engaged the attention of the authorities for months, was predicted here today.

It was said that state detectives will apply at Barnstable district court on Monday or Tuesday for a warrant against a well known Cape Cod figure.

This Is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS
I have just finished reading about a hundred University Extension papers, written in a course which I am just concluding at the Gardner. A definite note in "The Literature of Utopias" is that with Plato's "Republic" and More's famous book, which gave them all a name, and Bacon's dream of applied sciences, and Bellamy and Wells, and Huxley's savage story of a future of science, nature will allow and carry on the good work in generations to come.

In one of the papers I find a little clipping from the Sunday Advertiser which shows that Utopia is not yet dead. According to the story, a British general named Armstrong plans to originate a colony for the breeding of the world's most perfect human race somewhere in the Santa Catalina Plateau in Brazil, which at present is largely uninhabited. He would admit the most perfect physical specimens, preferably farmers with large families, who must be willing to multiply as rapidly as nature will allow and carry on the good work in generations to come.

The old and young, stud-farm ideas, which the eugenists have always had in the back of their minds and which Plato tried to work out in detail for the production of his perfect aristocrats, the Guardians.

How We Gentlemen
of the Press Fire
College Coaches
And Why Football
Is in a State of
Seasonal Unrest
By AUSTEN LAKE

I suppose the business of sport authoring gradually comes to be like that of a surgeon or a livestock butcher in a public abattoir, and that we all become callous to the pain of our victims, so that we can slice through living tissues and amputate quivering flesh with a cheery whistle. Out of morbid curiosity I have watched a clinical operation now and again, in which the surgeon and his staff of white hooded helpers, have tinkered with human vitals and have later heard the patients come out of their ether with vaporous ravings, like the letters that we sport authors sometimes receive after performing a job of blood letting.

Sometimes these letters begin, "I have just read your penetrating comment and am convinced of your malicious motive." And sometimes they start, "Listen, please, you are due for a smack on the chops." And once a man by the name of Alden from Salem wrote my managing editor, please not to let Lake write any more Latin because his small son had detected a false suffix when I wrote magna opus instead of magnum opus, and had flunked his afternoon nap as a result.

What I mean is that we are doing a pretty bit of firing among the college coaches right now, often matching at some unconsidered trifle to build a case against a man who needs his job, and I am afraid that we do not realize that we are dealing with human organisms or that unlike surgeons and public butchers, our amputations are usually destructive instead of healing the sick or providing nourishment to the well.

We have been busy firing Jack Cannell of Dartmouth, Hunk Anderson of Notre Dame, Eddie Casey of Harvard, Reggie Root of Yale, Howard Cann of N. Y. U., Austin Tate of Lehigh and Dr. John Harmon of B. U., though we have been successful, as yet, in bringing down only one of the group, Dr. Harmon, by a concerted, heroic unity in which every sport author in the city did a manful job.

How We Executed Rogers Hornsby

Now, I have heard the late Knute Rockne once say to a luncheon gathering, "College coaches are hired by the college board, but they are fired in the downtown lunch bars by Joe Alumni and other perennial sophomores over a muffin and a bowl of broth." Which is diverting the credit from our hard working authors. For what is the use of writing pieces to the effect, "Cannell ousted by student demand," or "Alumni hunt Casey's scalp," or a hundred other ingenious bits of headline art, if the credit goes elsewhere? Because it takes a lot of dining and hammering to convince college presidents and graduate managers that alumni sentiment is steamed up to the pitch where something drastic must be done, and the voice of an individual alumnus is a thin, piping cry in the wilderness, until we of the press organize it into a throbbing cricket chorus.

We do, for example, foment most of Rogers Hornsby's troubles in the National League, by whacking away at the "understanding" theme until we fazed a table into fact, whereas from actual observation it clear range there was no understanding at all. But we authors are fond of collective animosities and can whip up a stiff crusade from the smoke and cinders of our pretended indignation. You have no idea what fun it is to get into a lather of indignation at some baseless offense.

I have no doubt that there are a number of professors and instructors at Harvard, Dartmouth or Yale who are teaching economics or biology in the same sacred groves that they did 20 years ago. And I know of a veteran French instructor who is susceptible to a bottle of champagne and will not be ungrateful to stupid or lazy students who come bearing gifts. And I know a history professor who is noted for his tasty prejudices and unaccountable favoritism, though there seems to be no resentment against him on the part of the alumni, some of whom were his victims.

The Agony of Staring at a Blank Copy Sheet!

Suppose, as a sample, we authors should start a crusade against Dr. Futubus, Ph. D., of the Harvard Automotive Sciences Department, and din away on how his coarse laces imagination and intelligent direction. Before long the A. P. and I. N. S. and the special New York correspondents would be wiring their clients around the country:

"Cambridge, Nov. 23—Reports of the resignation of Dr. Futubus, under fire from Harvard alumni for lack of experimentalism and for faulty technique, are as yet unverified. But from unimpeachable authority . . . etc." How long, I ask you, before we have old Dr. Futubus' skin stretched over a picket rail?

Well, it would seem that if the credits for winning football games should go to the players and not to the coach, that the demands for losing should just as logically be charged against the players and not against the coaches. But that sort of reasoning to us authors is the purest nonsense and the unconsidered opinion of folk who do not know the agony of gripping a typewriter between the knees with a length of unfiled newspaper crying for readable type. Particularly, since we have such safety phrases as "it is alleged," "Rumor has it," "Reports from an unimpeachable source." We gotta eat ourselves, don't we?

SKATERS START WINTER WORK

Fancy and figure skaters of Greater Boston have started their winter work at the Boston Arena in preparation for the coming 25th annual and national championship exhibition. Several professionals are on hand with their pupils, among them Willie Frik, international star, and his wife, the former Canadian pair. Many amateurs who hope to capture prizes at the Ice Carnival to be held on Dec. 16, for the benefit of the Boston Evening American Christmas Bazaar, are on skates daily among them Miss Peggy Stuart of Cambridge, an amateur, whose progress is highly commensurate with the professional. Not only the skaters but many society mothers are taking part in the winter work, among them the mother of Miss Vinton, former American champion, now in Europe preparing for the international meet in Oslo, Norway, this winter. Many of the opponents are as famous as the skaters, among them Miss Peggy Stuart of Cambridge, an amateur, whose progress is highly commensurate with the professional.

FIVE MAINE PLAYERS PICKED FOR PINE TREE 'ALL TEAM

CHOICE OF COACHES

From end to end, the coaches, from whose selections the All-Maine consensus eleven was compiled, were in almost perfect accord but there was a decided variance as to the backfield combinations.

Naturally, the majority of the All-Maine eleven represents the state university, which came through with its eighth championship under Coach Fred Brice. The Blue and Blue has five players on the 1933 All State consensus eleven. Full Parsons, end; George Cobb, center, and Don Faver, Milton McBride and Bob Littlejohn in the backfield. Bates has Frank Soba and Tubby Stone at right guard and right tackle, respectively, and Bill Priebe in the backfield, while Paul Steigler and Harry Davidson are the Colby representatives, and Bob Low is the only Bowdoin player to make the grade.

PARSONS, DAVIDSON WINGS

Phil Parsons, Maine, and Harry Davidson, Colby, were adjudged the best ends in the Maine Conference. Parsons has received All-Maine honors for two years, and again this season he was a stand out.

Davidson captured his best season at Colby. He was a substitute a year ago, but his line all around playing made Coach Brice almost forget his 1932 ends, Stan Hersey and Ed Wilton. It was Davidson's ability to make passes from Jack Adams that was responsible for Colby's 6 to 0 victory over Bowdoin.

STONE BEST TACKLE

Tubby Stone, Bates, was the best tackle in the Maine State series, and had he been picked by a player of the Phil Parsons type, he could rate with the best in New England. Bob Low and Charlie McKenney, Bowdoin, were the runners up to Stone, with the former holding a one vote edge of his team state. Low was the state's best Black and White line, but with a year's experience under his belt McKenney, who hails from Wellesley, should receive state honors next season.

COBB UNANIMOUS CHOICE

George Cobb, Maine, was in a class by himself in the Maine series. Cobb is from Lewiston and prepared at Hebron Academy. He has played in the backfield. He weighs 170, is steady at all times, an accurate passer and a shrewd man.

While it was comparatively a simple matter for the Maine coaches to select the outstanding linemen, they evidently had trouble with the backfields for the player received more than two votes for any position.

FAVOR ON PUNTING

Don Faver, Maine's greatest punter, was the favorite among the coaches and junior years, owes his selections to his punting and passing ability. Faver is not a good blocker and not overburdened with football instinct but he can kick and he has the punting with the best of them.

Phil Priebe, Bates, is the only non-state university player in the 'All' backfield. The Rockville, N. Y. boy was somewhat handicapped by injuries this season and therefore did not figure as prominently as in the past. An extra necessary assistance from his teammates, which coupled with the fact that he was a marked man, set around when the entire Colby defense was built, made the going more difficult than he ever encountered in any college series.

Priebe, who was rated as the best in the state a year ago, was named out Capt. Henry Hubbard of Bowdoin. Until this season Hubbard had not enjoyed any outstanding reputation but he proved himself to be a fine all around back for the Polar Bears.

BELMONT BOY FULLBACK

Bob Littlejohn, from Maine's sophomore at Maine, was the leading fullback, again at the end of the season, the position was held by Eddie Barville, Bowdoin, would be the recipient of All State honors. Littlejohn played on a championship team last season, made a more favorable impression than the previous year, when he was a Polar Bear, when team failed to win a championship game.

Crimson Meteor

Cedric Janien may not start against Yale Saturday. But he is sure to figure prominently in the game. Started against Brown last week, and did well. Has come fast in past few weeks. Medford boy. Shone in scholastic circles here before matriculating at Cambridge. Full back and a good one.

30 Eagle Icemen Report at Arena

Thirty Boston College varsity hockey players, including Coach John "Snooks" Kelley of Cambridge, arrived at the Boston Arena for their initial workout of the season.

Four veterans were among those who reported. These were Capt. Ray Fanning and Randy Wills, defender, and Herb Crinik and Hank Goggin, wings. Frank Liddell, left wing on last year's team, will probably be present at the practice sessions today.

Everett Youth Fordham Captain

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—Lester Borden of Everett, Mass., right end of Fordham University's football team this year, was elected captain for 1934 yesterday by a vote of 23 alternates.

Favorite Lou Will Tony's at Ring Top Find Shucco Tough While Brouillard's Ring Dish Going Back

By DAVID F. EGAN

Mr. Lou Brouillard, who has eaten himself from the waterwheel into the light-heavyweight, and Signor Tony Shucco will provide the fight-fighting in the Garden tomorrow night.

Brouillard will be the favorite, but I dunno, and I'm sure I dunno. For Tony Brouillard has been a consistent unsuccessful against young men with agile and spirited left hands.

You may remember that Johnny Indranno, the wrath of Paul Brown, gave him two notable boxing lessons not more than a year ago, in his days when he was a contender-puncher almost exclusively, and you also may remember that Vince Dundee, who is no great shakes of a fighter, only recently stuck his left fist into Brouillard's face on offers that he not only was the unanimous decision, but also the middleweight championship of the world.

Andy Callahan, son kept the rushing, leading Brouillard off balance for 12 complete rounds with his right jab, and the whisperers are saying that Maurice Lemoyne, manager of Brouillard, has made another boxer match for his prize. In fact, they are pointing the finger of scorn at Lemoyne.

Just what makes a good manager is something that your enemy does not know. It certainly consists of a great deal of luck. Johnny Brouillard, which coupled with the fact that he was a marked man, set around when the entire Colby defense was built, made the going more difficult than he ever encountered in any college series.

Priebe, who was rated as the best in the state a year ago, was named out Capt. Henry Hubbard of Bowdoin. Until this season Hubbard had not enjoyed any outstanding reputation but he proved himself to be a fine all around back for the Polar Bears.

BELMONT BOY FULLBACK

Bob Littlejohn, from Maine's sophomore at Maine, was the leading fullback, again at the end of the season, the position was held by Eddie Barville, Bowdoin, would be the recipient of All State honors. Littlejohn played on a championship team last season, made a more favorable impression than the previous year, when he was a Polar Bear, when team failed to win a championship game.

At Taber Academy, where he was prepped, Littlejohn was a lineman but Fred Brice, who was in charge of the team, saw the power in his backfield so he decided to convert the Belmont boy into a fullback and as it turned out his judgment was correct. The student found was a sensation in the state series. He is a powerful running back, a ready blocker and gave every outward appearance of enjoying the game from start to finish.

A fumble on fourth down finally gave the ball in Memorial, and Kenney kicked far down the field to check the threat. Soon after the play was made through the first period. In the second stanza, the B. C. H. eleven surged from its own in the Memorial overpowered in a sustained drive. In this march, Halsey threw in a pass, sight of which were completed for substantial gains.

There is an air of confidence around the training camp of Tony Shucco of the North End who battles Lou Brouillard of Worcester in a ten-round bout at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

From Shucco's down to his training room attendant everybody has been told the word "chillies" long before it ever got into any of the "Punch" newsprint's speech.

It didn't drop me, I don't want New York on a silver platter, I am afraid too many fellows would want to take all the glory, and that I would end up, they never give you the double-cross.
